The “world” returns to Metchosin

Pearson College UWC students back to campus from 80+ nations

Pedder Bay – Going “back to school” in Metchosin takes on an entirely different meaning when you travel halfway around the world to get to the Pearson College UWC campus on Pedder Bay.

“For 44 years now, our students have been making their way to Pearson from nations around the world -- from Argentina to Zimbabwe and everywhere in between,” says President and Head of College Désirée McGraw.

During the week of August 28, 100 new first-year students are joining 80 returning second-year students at Canada’s only UWC (United World College) school. From more than 80 countries this year, and every province and territory of Canada, some of the brightest 16-to-19-year-olds in the world make the Victoria area their home.

Pearson is unique among pre-university, global education schools with a “deliberate diversity” mandate, meaning students are chosen based on merit, not on their ability to pay. Up to 90 per cent of Pearson students last year received full or partial scholarships, opening the door wider for students whose families may be refugees or who may not have the economic resources to make this type of education possible.

In addition to a demanding academic curriculum and a rigorous outdoor-oriented expeditionary education, students perform community service jobs and independent projects that will see them working across the Capital Region District and beyond.
